Year's $141,130 Budget Approved
And Anti-Noise Ordinance Offered;
Park Tract Purchase Authorized

At the regular session of city council Wednesday night, firemen and police presented a petition asking for a flat increase of $45 per month plus $100 per year for uniforms; the annual budget for $141,130 was passed; council voted to buy the tract of land south of Dayton Avenue along Paint Creek; an anti-noise ordinance to halt unnecessary blowing of train horns, whistles and other steam whistles was placed on its first reading, and other business transacted.

At the opening of the session Jacob Weizer, on behalf of the Moose Lodge, presented a U. S. Flag to the city council, for which appreciation was extended.

"Can you figure people who are so thoughtless, hard hearted and cruel who would dump puppies out along the highways in order to get rid of them?"

It was an irate woman's voice which came over the telephone, and then she proceeded to say that puppies had been dumped along U. S. 35, west, and that some of them were killed by traffic before they could be rescued.

"The same thing holds good with kittens which are left along the roads by passing motorists, and are either killed by cars or seek homes at nearby houses," continued the woman.

The woman suggested that if puppies must be disposed of, then turn them over to the dog warden for disposition.

For some unaccountable reason, this feminine humanitarian asked anonymity.

It has been a long time since I have seen a gray squirrel in this county, but when the first settlers came into the wilderness which is now fruitful and beautiful Fayette County, they found the woods literally teeming with gray squirrels, but few if any fox squirrels were in evidence.

It was a battle between the pioneer settlers and gray squirrels, and the animals were slaughtered promiscuously at all times in an effort to reduce their numbers and stop their ravages on the small cornfields which provided the pioneers with food for themselves and feed for their livestock.

Squirrel rifles were much in evidence in those days, and a few of these old timers are still in existence here.

The pioneer farmer and his entire family had to fight for their corn crops from the time of planting until the corn was safely in the granary where the hungry squirrels could not reach it.

Stories handed down from one generation to another, and recorded in some of the histories, tell how droves of the gray squirrels invaded fields of corn and soon caused great damage, particularly after the ears were beginning to mature.

Squirrel hunts were organized, and great numbers of the frisky little animals were slaughtered.

As the woods were cleared away and relentless warfare on them continued, the gray squirrels decreased in numbers.

Then came the fox squirrels, and by reason of their larger size and greater strength, it was a case of "survival of the fittest," and the gray squirrels were killed off or driven out of their usual haunts by the larger squirrels.

Battles to the death between the fox squirrels and gray squirrels were common, and as a boy I once witnessed such a fight. As usual the fox squirrel was victorious, and his adversary was killed by the long, sharp teeth of the fox squirrel.

Famous Singer Dies in Poverty

CHICAGO, Aug. 12—(P)—The body of May De Sousa, who sang her way from Chicago's raucous tenderloin district to international fame, lay unclaimed in Cook County morgue today. She was 66 years old.

Her once glamorous career, which took her before the crowded heads of Europe in the early yesterday of the century, ended in obscure poverty. She died Sunday in County Hospital of malnutrition.

The final years of her life were spent as a part-time scrubwoman. Her singing took her to many of the countries. While in Australia in 1918 she met and married Dr. William O'Hara, a surgeon. They later lived in Shanghai, where he died in 1941.

Twice a prisoner in the Japanese during the war years, she was repatriated in 1943.

Strike Storm Center And Prober Clash

DAYTON, Aug. 12—(P)—Lou Kaplan, CIO-UEW field representative and storm center of the recent Unions Lens Co. strike, is going to Washington again—on orders.

The union leader was subpoenaed yesterday to appear in the capital for the second time in two weeks. The subpoena came after a Congressional sub-committee session here in which heated remarks were exchanged by Kaplan and Rep. Clare Hoffman (R-Mich.).

Hoffman, who conducted the hearing, remarked at one point that the strike followed a Communist pattern. Kaplan countered with: "I've heard that you were a member of the Ku Klux Klan and the German-American Bund, but I wouldn't mention it."

At another point, Hoffman shouted at Kaplan, "shut up, and then immediately apologized."

"You've got a yellow streak down your back", Hoffman told the unionist.

Kaplan replied: "I've got more respect for your age than you have for the Constitution."

After that, Hoffman served Kaplan with an order to appear in Washington before the House subcommittee investigating labor disputes. Kaplan had testified before the committee last week.

Fluctuation of Farm Prices Watched as Tip General Trend

By WAYNE OLIVER
NEW YORK, Aug. 12—(P)—Is inflation being checked?

Many farm prices recently have plunged below the bottom they reached during the February commodity price break, and in the opinion of many will not go up again. Reports this week of bountiful crops seemed to confirm these forecasts.

The notable exception, of course, is livestock, and consumers can expect high prices for meat for some months.

Farm prices are the traditional bellwether for all prices the consumer has to pay. Historically they rise first and drop first in general price movements.

Business leaders, economists and Wall Street are all watching the nation's markets closely these days along with farmers, trying to figure out what lies ahead for the whole economy.

They are watching to see whether industrial raw materials and other things that eventually figure in the cost of living will follow farm prices down—or stabilize without further price increases.

The overall price structure fails to reflect some of the internal changes that have been taking place, and these may be significant for all of us.

Allies Block Russian Raids In Berlin Zone

Kremlin Conferences
Resumed, but Both Sides Standing Pat

By RICHARD KASISCHKE
BERLIN, Aug. 12—(P)—American and British military police turned back two Russian forays into their sectors of Berlin today.

Russian military police, augmented by German policemen from the Soviet sector, were attempting to arrest Germans in the western sectors. The Russians said they were looking for black-marketers. British and Americans said the Soviets also might be looking for Russian army deserters, or might just have been engaging in "harassing tactics."

The Americans at Kreuzberg turned back Soviet-controlled German policemen and Russian MPs who were trying to search houses across the border from their zones. The British, aided by western sector German officers, stopped a similar sortie at Potsdamer Platz.

In Frankfurt, about 20,000 German office and industrial workers angrily protested rising living costs at a mass meeting called by trades unions. One group attacked an American soldier after overturning his jeep. It was the biggest and noisiest demonstration in the American zone city since the end of the war.

Western diplomats trudged into the Kremlin today for their fourth talk in two weeks with Foreign Minister Molotov over the Berlin blockade and the east-west cold war.

An informant in London, who has been following the Kremlin exchanges from the inside, said the western powers can be expected to ask Prime Minister Stalin to intervene personally if the talks with Molotov fail.

To all appearances, the diplomatic maneuvers were like the irresistible force encountering the immovable object. The London informant said there had been no sign of weakening in the U. S., British and French position as of yesterday.

The financial deadlock persisted. The Russians on one hand froze accounts of western Berlin firms in Soviet zone banks. The western powers froze accounts of Russian-sponsored marks in banks in their sector.

A third bureau of the elected Berlin city government was threatened today with a splitup between Russian and non-Communist control.

The Communist head of the labor department refused to abide by a decision of the city government to give the anti-Communist faction of the trade union federation rights to negotiate with employers. He insisted that only the Communist faction, backed by the Russian, had such powers.

Hamilton Racing Faces Legal Ban

HAMILTON, Aug. 12—(P)—An injunction banning racing and other activities at the Butler County fairgrounds because of alleged unsanitary conditions has been asked by city health authorities.

The officials asked Common Pleas court Judge P. P. Bolt for the injunction yesterday, and the court ordered a hearing Saturday on the matter. He did not issue a temporary injunction but said the Saturday hearing would be on a permanent order.

City Health Commissioner A. M. Clark and Dr. H. A. Moore, Butler County health commissioner, have described the fairgrounds sewer system and other sanitary facilities as inadequate.

Track operators have reported that changes in sanitary conditions now are being made.

Children's Home Head Awarded Jeweled Pin

Life of Unselfish Community Service
Given Recognition Before Revue Crowd

Easy-going, smiling, kindly David Whiteside whom hundreds of children, wards of the county at the Fayette County Children's home during the past 18 years, have come to love, respect and regard like a real father, has been designated as the first award winner in Fayette County's selection of an "All American Golden Rule Citizen."

This selection which is the first of 12 to be made by a committee of 25 judges composed of Washington C. H., and Fayette County citizens, is a part of the program in connection with the Washington Park Association's campaign, through a series of 12 outstanding shows presented here, to raise sufficient money to complete a modern swimming pool at Washington Park at the earliest possible time.

Special tribute and honor was paid to Whiteside at the high school auditorium Wednesday evening.

Storm Hits Toledo

TOLEDO, Aug. 12—(P)—Damage estimated at thousands of dollars was caused yesterday when the city was swept by a 60-mile-an-hour gale and thunder squall. Only person injured was Mrs. Grace Jaeger, 66, when a gust of wind threw her to the sidewalk.

City To Buy 17 Acre Tract for Park and Recreation

This picture shows the western part of the recreation ground to be purchased by the city. It was taken from near the concrete bridge east of the B. & O. station, showing Paint Creek in the right foreground and the Oakland Avenue bridge indicated by the arrow. The cross shows the trees of Washington Park to the north of the tract to be purchased.

As result of favorable vote by city council, Wednesday night, which adopted by unanimous vote an ordinance authorizing City Manager W. W. Hill to purchase 16.54 acres along Paint Creek, north of the B. & O. Railroad, east of Millikan Avenue and south of Oakland Avenue, this city will soon own a sizeable tract to be used for recreation purposes.

The tract is to be purchased from G. H. Woodmansee, Carroll Halliday and L. M. Hayes, for $6,000 and inasmuch as it lies south of the Washington Park tract, it will center recreational activities in that area.

An ordinance to purchase the tract had been submitted at the last previous meeting, and reports indicate that the step met with public approval, so the ordinance

2-Hour Show Presented to Full House

A variety entertainment, highlighted by a name band and quartette vocal harmony, was presented on the stage of the high school auditorium here Wednesday night as the first of a series of revues to be presented under the banner of "The Best Is Yet To Come."

Climaxing the two-hour performance was the presentation of the jeweled pin to David Whiteside, superintendent of the county Children's Home, as the county's first "Golden Rule Honor Citizen."

Afterward, the consensus of the home-bound audience that packed the auditorium was that the first of the series of shows sponsored by the Washington Park Association had more than come up to advance promises.

Predictions were general that demands for tickets for the coming entertainments would far exceed the supply. As it was, the first show drew a capacity crowd in spite of the fact that there was no advance announcement of the program.

Cuba Bank Bandits Grab $562,000 Cash

BY BEN F. MEYER
HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 12—(P)—Cuban police today sought a polite band of robbers who strolled into a downtown Havana bank yesterday and sauntered out again with $562,000 in cash.

All airports, ships and trains are being watched for the smooth-working bandits who herded 18 persons into a rear room of a branch of the Royal Bank at Canada just after the 3 P. M. closing time, then looted the bank's vault and cashier's cage without being molested.

The robbery was executed by eight or ten men led by one dressed in a policeman's uniform. Although they were armed with pistols and machineguns not a shot was fired.

The manager said a preliminary check indicated the thieves took a total of $562,000 in U. S. dollars and Cuban pesos. The peso has the same value as the dollar. He said $365,000 was taken from the vault and the balance from the cashier's window. All of it was in bills of $100, $500 and $1,000 denomination, both Cuban and American.

A bank spokesman said the entire loss was covered by insurance.

69 lbs. Marihuana From Mexico Seized

EL PASO, Tex., Aug. 12—(P)—U. S. customs agents announced today they seized 69 pounds of marihuana, described as one of the largest hauls ever made on the Texas-Mexico border.

The marihuana, if rolled into cigarettes, would bring an estimated $70,000 at Eastern and Pacific coast points, customs men said.

Woman Wanted In Spy Inquiry Is Not Released

Perjury Prosecution
Looms as Outgrowth
Of Investigation

NEW YORK, Aug. 12—(P)—Soviet Consul General Yakov M. Lomakin today defied a New York supreme court writ ordering him to produce in court a Russian school teacher wanted for questioning in the Communist spy investigation.

The consul general had been ordered to bring the woman, Mrs. Oksana Stepanovna Kosenkina, in to court at 9:30 A. M. (EST). Neither had appeared by 10:20 A. M.

Present in the courtroom was Countess Alexandra Tolstoy, president of the Tolstoy Foundation, who was expected to testify in connection with the writ.

The countess was asked by reporters whether Mrs. Kosenkina was anywhere in the packed courtroom. She rose and scanned the faces and told the newsmen that the woman was not present.

Mrs. Kosenkina has been sequestered in the Soviet consulate here since last week when Lomakin announced he had "rescued" her from a white Russian retreat at Valley Cottage, N. Y.

Fearing Being Shot

The retreat is operated by Countess Tolstoy. The countess termed Lomakin's story a "lot of baloney" and said Mrs. Kosenkina fled to Valley Cottage because she was afraid of being shot.

Lomakin, served with the writ issued by State Supreme Court Justice Samuel Dickstein, indicated yesterday that he would ignore it. Earlier, Lomakin brushed aside newsmen's questions as to whether he would bring Mrs. Kosenkina in to court. He said he was "too busy" to answer any queries.

Justice Samuel Dickstein, who issued the writ, was quoted as declaring "I will compel him to obey—I am not going to let him ignore the law."

The New York Herald Tribune quoted Dickstein as saying that if necessary he would order the sheriff to seize the teacher, who has been at the consulate since Saturday.

Dickstein was quoted as saying he understood Mrs. Kosenkina was seized for return to Russia "where she claims she will be killed."

The writ was issued yesterday on application by representatives of Common Cause, Inc., an anti-Communist organization, and was handed to Lomakin.

Petitioners for the writ said they believed the teacher was being held prisoner at the consulate "through power, deceit and terror" to prevent her from revealing conditions in her native Russia.

RUSSIA PROTESTS
WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—(P)—Russia protested to the United States today against New York court directing the Soviet consul in New York City to produce in court a Russian school teacher.

Russia's move and the department's action was announced by a state department spokesman.

The New York court order directed Soviet Consul General Yakov M. Lomakin to produce in court at 9:30 A. M. (EST) today Mrs. Oksana Kosenkina.

Lomakin ignored the order. Investigation Goes On

Meanwhile the House un-American activities committee announced today that "preliminary steps" have been taken to prosecute some spy hearings witnesses for perjury—lying under oath.

Chairman Thomas (R-N.J.) also announced that Michael Ivanovitch Samarin, former Russian school teacher, and his wife will be questioned by the committee in Washington instead of in New York, as originally planned.

On the perjury move, Thomas said George Morris Fay, United States attorney for the district of Columbia, has obtained a transcript of all hearings in the committee's current investigation of an alleged espionage ring. Thomas said Fay is "particularly interested in the perjury angle."

Perjury Charges
Several committee members have demanded that the justice department institute perjury proceedings. They said testimony has been so conflicting that it was obvious some one was deliberately lying.

Thomas did not say when the Samarins will be questioned but (Please turn to Page Two)

The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—(P)—The Russians have been clumsy in their spying, or they're unlucky. In some of it, anyway. Look at what's happened in Canada, in this country and in Yugoslavia. Take Canada first. Igor Gouzenko, a lieutenant in the Red army, received special training for work in Canada. He was sent there in 1943 as a cipher clerk in the Russian embassy at Ottawa.

He was assigned to the staff of the military attaché. He worked in a secret room. His job was to code messages sent to Russia, undecode those from Russia.

In two years of doing that, he found out:

1. The Russian secret police had a spy ring in Canada.

2. His boss, the military attaché, was head of a separate spy ring gathering Canadian military information for Russia.

This spy ring was made up of some important Canadian government employees, one a member of parliament, who worked against their own country because of their devotion to Communism.

Ordered to return to Russia in 1943, Gouzenko decided to stay in Canada at any cost. Instead of burning a lot of secret documents he handled, as he had been ordered to, he hid them and saved them.

Then he turned over the batch to the Canadian police. This broke the most sensational spy ring ever uncovered in North America. At least 11 of the Canadians pleaded guilty or were convicted.

The Russian spymasters had made a mistake in believing Gouzenko could be trusted in Canada or they made a mistake in not watching him closer when he got there.

Now take Yugoslavia.

The Communist country, under the dictatorship of Marshal Tito, a long-time Communist, had worked with Russia like a twin brother.

Some weeks ago the two countries split. Since it was the first break between two Communist countries, the news was stunning.

Pieces of the story have leaked out, but not all of it. This week Tito told some of it in a letter he sent to members of Yugoslavia's Communist party. He said:

The Russians, while they still were bosom pals of the Yugoslavs, had tried to entice some of them to become spies for Russia.

And, shades of Gouzenko, one of the men the Russians tried to pull into their spy net was a Yugoslav cipher clerk.

Now turn to this country. In 1944, a year before Gouzenko went to the Canadian police, Elizabeth T. Bentley went to the FBI in this country and told them this story:

She had been a member of the American Communist party and had acted as messenger for a Soviet spy ring here.

In the ring, where a number of U.S. government employees and officials, some of them important.

The FBI has investigated her story; a federal grand jury has investigated it; and so has the House un-American activities committee.

So far nobody she named has been jailed or indicted, although she first told her story four years ago. Why?

Perhaps those who have heard her story didn't believe it, at least not all of it. Some of the people she named called her a liar.

Maybe she couldn't back up her story with evidence. Unlike Gouzenko, who kept the documents to support what he said, she has produced no evidence so far as the public record shows.

Right at this point there's a Russian uproar in New York. There Michael Samarin, a Russian schoolteacher, has gone to the FBI.

He had been teaching the children of Russians in this country. When he was ordered on July 31 to return to Russia he, like Gouzenko, decided he didn't want to go. So he went to the FBI.

The un-American activities committee wants to hear what Samarin has to say. They've called on him to come here and testify.

All this doesn't mean the Russians haven't done successful spying—practically every country does some. They've just been sloppy—or unlucky—some times.

Take Time To Plan New Home Building Contractor's Advice

With the number of building permits being issued each month plugging steadily but slowly along a Washington C. H. contractor has issued a note of warning to all prospective home-builders: If you want a house that will give you lasting satisfaction, take your time planning it. The plan makes a home livable. Exterior design is secondary to the lay out.

He particularly emphasized not changing plans after the work begins. The place to make changes is in the preliminary drawings. After a contract is signed there is no chance for competitive bids on changes—you pay what the builder asks for such "extras".

He went on to say it is wise to plan a house as nearly rectangular as possible. A plan that is a simple rectangle gives the most floor space with the least exterior wall and foundation work. Every jog or wing involves extra work joining corners and fitting roof valleys and ridges.

According to the contractor, the following hints should be observed for a well built home:

1. A two-story house is usually cheaper to build than the same size dwelling with all rooms on one floor. It takes less foundation, less waste space under the roof, heats more efficiently.
2. All stairs should have sturdy handrails.
3. Allow plenty of room for a flight of stairs. Keep stairs far enough from any door to permit it to open freely.
4. Avoid cellar stairs that descend directly from a threshold or drop step. A platform will prevent accidents. Keep headroom uniform at every point in a staircase. Avoid winding stairs with wedge shaped treads; they're dangerous.
5. If you can work a vestibule into your plan it will pay big dividends in comfort. An entrance door opening directly into a living room can be cold and drafty and mean more housework.

6. Closet size is mostly a matter of personal opinion, but many architects contend you will throw money away if you build clothes closets much deeper than 24 to 27 inches. Double bedroom should have two closets.

7. To economize on plumbing, plan your bathroom next to the kitchen or directly above it.

8. Don't have a bathroom that opens into two bedrooms. It is better to have only one bathroom door opening from a hall.

Some dimensions which have proved popular are: basement height, cellar floor to surface of first floor, 8 to 9 feet; Room height, first floor surface to second floor surface, 9 feet; upstairs, second floor surface to attic floor surface, 8½ feet; first floor windows 4'6" to 5'2" high with ledge 2'6" to 2'10" from floor; top of the window is a minimum of 7' from floor; double hung windows are usually 2 to 3 feet wide; second story windows, 4 to 4½' high with ledge 2'2" to 2'8" above floor and top at least 6'8" from floor.

4 New Majorettes Chosen for Band

Four new majorettes will be strutting alongside the five veterans when the crack WHS marching band put on its first show at the football game here Sept. 17 when the Blue Lions play the grid-ers from Linden-McKinley High School in Columbus.

Martha Ann Wyatt, Sue Scott, Joyce Bandy and Carolyn Sue McNutt were chosen from among 11 girls who tried out for the places Monday.

Bandmaster William Clift made the selections, using a standard form for grading their performances.

Two of the girls, Martha Ann and Sue, probably will take their place in the main line of majorettes with Cynthia Gage, Mary Lou Toops, Patty Eckle, Dorothy Rada-baugh and Janet Lucas, Clift said.

The other two probably will be given different uniforms and special places. They are smaller than the others, Clift said, explaining that he was working on some novelty formations.

Drills are to start in a couple of weeks in order to get the show in shape for the opening game here and the performance the band is scheduled to make in the Cleveland Stadium between the half of the Cleveland Browns-Chicago Rocket professional football game Sept. 26.

Columbus Firemen Prefer Long Week

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12—(P)—Columbus firemen during two days of secret balloting voted overwhelmingly as preferring a 56-hour work week over the existing 40-hour week, Fire Chief Walter S. Strickfaden disclosed today. Out of 381 voting, 350 chose the longer schedule, the chief said. Thirty-one, some of them civilian personnel employed in the fire department shop, voted for the retention of the 40-hour week approved by voters last Nov. 4.

Results of the polling spurred city officials to draw up legislation and prepare petitions to be circulated among electors so that the issue might be placed on the Nov. 2 ballot.

Here's Something Deserving Your Prompt Help

A noble piece of work to which every individual in Washington C. H. and Fayette County, who is able to do so, should offer generous help, is being undertaken by the Diocesan Catholic Youth Council of St. Colman's Catholic Church in this city.

Recognizing that one of the greatest needs facing thousands upon thousands of deserving women, children and men in various European countries today is the want of some kind of shoes, in many cases even more than food, the Catholic churches of America, through what is known as their Bishops' Committee, have commenced to collect old shoes and have them repaired when necessary. Special representatives of the church, working without pay, have been assigned to see that such shoes in wearable condition, are delivered to the hands of families in Europe where shoes are a luxury as well as a desperate need.

There will be no discrimination in the distribution of such shoes. Protestants, Catholics, Jews and all others will be reached with this help. Actual need of children and men and women, will be the only objective. Nor will such shoes fall into the hands of "black markets" or of agencies which are playing politics or of individuals who profit by such distribution. Direct aid to the family itself will be the watchword, according to those who are undertaking this worthwhile project.

The Record-Herald Wednesday carried a news story and an advertisement giving the names of the Fayette County young people who are helping to make this collection of shoes locally. Father Otto Guenther says that if anyone has any old shoes to contribute and doesn't know whom to call, ring his home.

Tomorrow morning you are dressing, and you reach for your shoes. But, there are no shoes. That's right, no shoes. You are in a land where, because of disrupted economy, lack of machinery, lack of raw materials, practically no shoes have been manufactured since 1945. So, you must walk the blistering pavements without shoes. Into the store, shop, factory, without shoes. Out to the barn, into the fields, without shoes.

To us in America it is utterly ridiculous. But to the millions of Europe's distressed peoples this lack of shoes is a tragic fact. Men work in factories and mines, their feet wrapped in burlap rags. Children trudge to school with pieces of cardboard or an old tire tied to their little feet. Women walk many barefoot miles from market to market seeking the meager rations their food-card entitles them to.

With our abundance it is hard for us to bring that picture into focus. We never get all the wear out of our shoes, clothes or cars that the manufacturer builds into them. Long before a pair of shoes is worn out, really worn out, we cast them aside for a new pair. There is scarcely a man or woman in our city that does not have one or more pairs of serviceable shoes they will never wear again. There are a lot of children's shoes which could be given for the same reason.

The Youth Council of St. Colman's Church, with other youth all over the land are collecting those shoes to send to the shoeless men, women, and children of Europe before the winter winds blow down from the Baltic.

Just think—here is a small item, something we do not want, we have cast it aside, but it can bring joy and comfort, health, even life, to our needy children and adults in another land.

Let's give our used shoes to the shoeless millions. Fifty million pairs of good shoes can deliver a mighty swift kick to Communism in Europe.

Whoever is elected to occupy the White House next year may be in for a period of disappointment. Architects say some parts of the building stay up "purely from habit", and a six-month repair job is needed.

Some kind of medal should go to the Cleveland sandlot ball team which, in a seven-inning game, succeeded in getting beaten 50 to 0, making no hits and 31 errors.

Fate's Thumb on Butcher's Scale

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, (AP)—The butcher is at bay.

This is a new spectacle in our civilization, and well may be the first vindication of Oswald Spengler's predication of the collapse of the western world.

Harried by high prices and protesting housewives, the man at the meat block no longer can be sure on which side his pork chop is breaded—or buttered.

The lone man with the cleaver doesn't know whom to cleave to—his irate female customers or the stern wholesaler who has forced his costs up above the usual pattern that brings in a profit.

They can talk all they want to about the normal law of supply and demand, but mama—the gal who fixes the family budget—is getting mad. And for the first time in our lifetime the man in the white apron behind the meat counter is on the defensive.

Supply or no supply, the lady of the house is demanding lower prices. She wants to bring home the bacon, but she wants it on her own terms. And more and more she is raising that deadliest of threats—a buyers' boycott—to get what she wants for the money she has to spend.

The neighborhood butcher, long the arbiter of customer menus, now finds he has no friend at all. Housewives who courted his favor and brought him presents in wartime have finally reached the point of rebellion.

The butcher would like to rebel too—but there is no way he can. Worn out with the beefing over inflation, he would like to take it on the lam, but all he can do is stand there patiently and live and lope.

It isn't meet that this once proud figure should bear all the onus of family budgetary problems. It's a rough situation for him, anyway you slice it. And he veals it as much as you do.

Nobody really loves a butcher. He lives always in an arena of doubt. I learned this years ago in my golden youth, when I served as an apprentice meat cutter. It was a period of depression and we formulated a rare hamburger at three pounds for a quarter. Then the clientele accepted the price but questioned the hamburger. Today they accept the hamburger but question the price.

Having in my lifetime been on both sides of the counter, I realize that there is no permanent answer to the problem of buying and selling meat. In bad times, when round steak goes begging at 29 cents a pound, the butcher yearns to throw a slab in the faces of his finicky customers. In good times he can't afford to. Meat is money then.

Forlorn and forsaken behind his well-stocked display case, the butcher now faces a dubious future. His usual careful camaraderie with the housewife is dissipating in a fog of ill will and soaring prices.

In a court fuss here the other day a customer accused a butcher of belaboring him with an iron chair. The butcher said, well, the customer had grabbed up a 30-pound bus stanchion—and after all,

Much is at stake—perhaps civilization as we have known it. Maybe the solution is for everyone to turn vegetarian. Then who would carrot all?

Plight of Metropolitan Opera

By George E. Sokolsky

The directors of the Metropolitan Opera House were sound in their decision to close down for the 1948-49 season when they found it impossible to operate their enterprise efficiently. Maybe before this appears in print, the labor unions involved will realize that management has a right to operate its enterprises efficiently. This is really the issue at stake.

Did you ever watch an electrician do a job by slow motion? I often wonder whether they carry stop-watches to guide them to do the least possible work during the longest possible time at the highest possible wages? If one lets one of these highwaymen into his house, he mortgages his future. That is one of the main reasons why there is a housing shortage in this country. The contractor, who is responsible to the payer, stands about shaking his head in disgust. He has no right in the matter; the union determines what is an efficient operation. But the union does not pay the bill.

Have you recently bought an automobile? Was it slapped together so that you had plentiful repairs during the first five hundred miles? True, you are guaranteed and the company sends you a check to cover repairs. But what about your time? What about being stuck on the road, miles from nowhere, with a car that is absolutely new but has a broken carburetor or an air purifier, with ten top loose or one of a thousand other defects? Management can quarrel with the unions but it cannot establish old-time efficient operations. It has to be gentle with the incompetent, the inconsiderate, the inefficient.

Did you ever complain to the telephone operators, particularly the long-distance gals who used to be the pride of the United States, because they cut you off? Where is the renewed efficiency of this best of all systems? They have had too many strikes.

The other day I called up a store to ask about a water-pump. A girl went into a rigamarole as to whether I wanted to buy the pump, or order from the catalogue. I said, "I wanted a pump."

"I know that," she replied, "but do you want it on the floor or from the catalogue?"

"Look, Miss," I said, "I want a pump. Get me one from the catalogue, from the floor, from the warehouse, from Chicago, Philadelphia, or from General Wood himself, but get me a man who sells a pump."

"Don't shout at me," she said angrily.

"A pump! A kingdom for a pump," I wept.

So she told me to call another number.

Finally, I got a man and, in a two-minute conversation over the telephone, I bought the pump, which was in my possession as soon as we got up to the store.

The first girl might have lost that sale, but what can management do? If they criticize her, she will accuse management of shouting at her even if they whisper that she is losing customers.

The Metropolitan Opera House cannot operate efficiently, because each year it has to enter into prolonged negotiations with 12 unions, the pivotal ones being very tough and always asking for more. If they do not want more wages, they want different working conditions or more for their social security fund, or they tell management how many are to be in the chorus or by what slow motions the various jobs are to be done. It is impossible to hire stars, to make contracts with top-flight singers, to plan a program, to estimate costs until these negotiations are concluded. Then management has to go about the town, hat in hand, begging from opera-lovers to make up the deficit.

It is not worth doing anything on that basis. The argument of Petrillo's union that the Metropolitan belongs to the people and that management cannot shut it down is the bunk. If all management went on strike when it cannot operate efficiently and if the public stopped buying when it finds itself abused, this nonsense of inefficiency and featherbedding and just plain blackmailing would soon cease. The time has come to strike back.

Diet and Health Change of Life Puzzle of Women

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IT has long been a puzzle why some women should suffer so severely during the change of life while others have practically no trouble at all. Admittedly, the glandular changes occurring at this time demand a readjustment of the entire body, but since the changes themselves are the same for all women, modern science believes that the variation in their effects is due to differences in the type of nervous system and its ability to withstand stress and strain.

A woman who is highly sensitive and easily upset may have symptoms early during the change of life, often before the periods stop. In fact, she may get similar symptoms during each monthly period.

Placid Woman

On the other hand, the stable, placid woman may go through the change of life without hardly any symptoms at all.

It is also interesting to note that women who tend to be gloomy and depressed at the time of the regular monthly periods will have similar symptoms at the time of the change of life. Those who are jittery or irritable and subject to headache or stomach upsets will usually find these symptoms more noticeable at the time of the change. In short, basic weaknesses which have revealed themselves briefly at previous times are usually intensified during the change of life.

It is for this reason, perhaps, that the use of glandular extracts, known as estrogens, do not do much to relieve the symptoms which occur during the change of life in all instances. It has been noted, too, that a patient who seems to be getting along all right when the estrogens are employed often will have a return of the symptoms when something upsets her. Thus, a quarrel with her husband, some worry or infection may bring on the symptoms despite the fact that estrogen is being given.

Forms of Treatment

Women who have trouble during this time need several forms of treatment. Often, reassurance and mental treatment are helpful. Certain preparations may be employed to control the upset nervous system. These include ergotamine tartrate, belladonna, and phenobarbital.

The estrogens are helpful in many instances. In mild cases, however, they will not be needed. In moderately severe cases, the drugs which quiet the nervous system may be employed, and in severe cases the estrogens are used. It is suggested that the estrogens not be continued longer than a few months. The other drugs, also, should be stopped within three to six months and used only as required.

Proper Diet

Of course, there should be treatment aimed at getting rid of such symptoms as occur. For example, bromides may be used for restlessness. Proper diet may help get rid of symptoms due to stomach and bowel disturbances. Arthritic symptoms, that is, pain and aching in the joints, may be relieved by heat, the salicylates, and massage.

Thus, any woman who has difficulty during the change of life should have a careful study made by her physician so that the most effective method for getting rid of her symptoms may be employed.

$10,000,000 Rumor Denied by Maharajah

LONDON, Aug. 12—(AP)—The Maharajah of Baroda, en route to London from New York, refused today to say whether he would quit as ruler of one of India's richest princely states.

Reached aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth by radio telephone, the Maharajah scoffed at charges by his legislature that he misused $10,000,000 of his state's public treasury.

"Someone must have put this rumor out about me," he said. He added he plans to fly to India soon after his arrival in England. He is due at Southampton tonight.

The London Star said the Maharajah will fly back to Baroda in a personal plane, a silver DC-3 equipped with powder-blue armchairs, a desk, a bar and a kitchenette. The newspaper said he will be accompanied home by his Maharane and their young son, who have been staying at a country home in Surrey.

Cuba Supplies Vast Amount of Sugar to U. S.

Big Increase Shown In Consumption Over Past Years

It has not been long since residents of Fayette County and the nation generally, found it difficult to obtain all of the sugar they wanted, due to the shortage and the fact that other nations drew heavily upon the source of supply, of the U. S. during the war.

However local residents now find sugar abundant, and the consumption has moved rapidly upward.

Sugar needed for the recently increased estimate by the Department of Agriculture of United States consumption requirements and to supply additional deficits from domestic areas below the quotas assigned them under the Sugar Act of 1948 will be obtained principally from Cuba, the only area with sugar available now to meet the increased need, according to the July Bulletin of the United States Cuban Sugar Council, just published.

Virtually all of the 200,000-ton increase in the consumption requirements from 7,000,000 tons under the Sugar Act of 1948, in 26 by the Department of Agriculture will be supplied by Cuba, which has also been allotted about 72 percent of the previously announced deficits from domestic areas of 175,000 tons.

The bulletin observes that "two successive record sugar crops—6,448,000 tons in 1947 and about 6,675,000 tons in 1948—have again demonstrated that Cuba is the world's largest and most dependable producer of sugar." Those two crops were about one-fifth of world's sugar output in each year.

The quota for Cuban sugar which can be shipped into the United States market this year under the Sugar Act of 1948, including the recent allocation of deficits, amounts to only 2,774,287 tons, the bulletin says, a reduction of 26 percent from the 3,750,000 tons of sugar from Cuba consumed in the United States in 1947 when sugar quotas were not in effect.

The council's publication also notes that United States exports to Cuba of all kinds of commodities except food products have continued at even higher levels during the first four months of 1948 than during the same period of 1947. With increased shipments of foodstuffs to Europe made possible by the Economic Cooperation Administration, United States exports of food to Cuba have declined. Total purchases by Cuba of products of United States farms and factories in 1947 amounted to $492 million. The long-term effect of restricting the quantity of Cuban sugar which can be sold here, the bulletin says, "cannot be other than severely harmful to the volume of United States sales to Cuba."

Woman Boy Bopper Released by Court

CHICAGO, Aug. 12—(AP)—Mrs. Alice King, 94-year old baby sitter, was free today to take care of herself—and to see movies undisturbed.

She told women's court that she had been "taking care of myself for 75 years and I think I can take care of myself now." The occasion for her court appearance was a disorderly conduct charge.

The occasion for the charge came when she bopped a couple of kids in the movie when they wouldn't take their feet off her seat. Judge William V. Daly dismissed the charge.

Exciting Days Just Ahead Now

Many 1948 Seniors Plan College

Many 1948 seniors of Washington High School will be lowly freshmen again in another month. High school records show that approximately one third of the class plan to go on to college.

So it follows that in the few weeks remaining the mailman will be hounded for the arrival of registration cards, the prospect of an unknown roommate will cause much speculation, faithful promises will be made to keep in touch with high school pals, wardrobes will be made over and added to and there'll be a run on the market for laundry bags.

In the midst of this exciting flurry there'll be a thousand unanswered questions besetting the minds of the prospective students. In the hope that they will find a few of the answers before they leave home, a recent college graduate whose home is in Washington C. H., has listed the following suggestions:

1. Let your high school wardrobe carry the burden for the first year. Save the "clothes splurge" for your sophomore year. No one has seen your present wardrobe, and by waiting you'll have a better idea of what is accepted at your college and your selection will be that much wiser.
2. Accept all the fraternity and sorority "rush week" party invitations, but don't bid until second semester or the beginning of your sophomore year. You can't distinguish among the various groups until the glamour of rush week is over, and by waiting until you're actually acquainted, you'll find out which group you'll fit in with best.

3. Be regular with that weekly letter home. If your parents are good enough to lend you to school, they deserve to have their worries kept to a minimum.

4. Investigate the extra-curricular activities, especially those associated with your major subject. Join one or two your first year and be active. You'll be surprised at the interesting acquaintances you'll make. However, don't take on too many outside activities because you'll have a big adjustment in studies to make.

5. Don't let the prospect of examinations get you down. The best way to "hit" an exam is to keep up with your classwork and get at least eight hours of sleep the night before. A clear mind will work wonders.

6. Treat your profs as if they're human beings. It's surprising how most of them will reciprocate and they can be valuable friends.

(The remaining are for girls only.)

7. When asked for a date, never "I'll let you know," if reluctant to accept. Better a definite "no," which will save figuring out how to get out of it gracefully later.

8. For a formal dance, start dressing early enough so you won't look like you dressed in five minutes. And take pity on making your date wait for you.

9. When a dance is scheduled which turns the tables and permits the girl to ask a fellow, don't be afraid to ask your "dream" man, even if he hasn't dated you before. Some men need a push.

10. When you're on a date, don't be afraid to laugh and enjoy yourself. You'll find the sophisticates aren't half as popular as the girls who "effervesce."

Meat Boycott
Reaction Here
Not Noticeable

Consumer Buying
Holds Steady and
So Do Stock Sales

The housewife-sponsored meat boycott that has grabbed nationwide newspaper headlines during the last week, created hardly more than a ripple on the surface in this meat-producing community.

There was virtually no reaction to the boycott campaign in Washington C. H. retail markets or the stockyards.

This was underscored by a survey by the Record-Herald.

A cross section of meat dealers in town answered "No" to the question "Has there been any unusual reaction in your sales since the beginning of this week?"

Prices on hogs in the Fayette Stockyards were up 50 cents a hundredweight Wednesday and up a dollar on cows. John O'Connor, manager of the stockyards, said that there had been no reaction here, although he stated that the Cincinnati market showed considerable reaction to the boycott.

Confirming O'Connor's opinion, the Cincinnati Enquirer reported today that Tuesday's prices were $2 below their quotations of Tuesday of last week on hogs and $1 below last Tuesday's beef prices. Cincinnati's wholesale markets which generally run considerably above those of Washington C. H., were below those here Wednesday.

The Mother's Circle and the Business and Professional Women's Club here are not active in the current national drive, according to their officers. High prices in general were the subject of a resolution passed this spring by the Business and Professional Women to combat prices that were "out of line." However, meat was not singled out in this resolution.

There was considerable action in Cincinnati by consumers groups in urging housewives to buy as little meat as possible before August 21. The Greater Cincinnati Consumer's Conference is one of the principle organizations active in the boycott, according to the Enquirer.

Some unemployment in the meat industry appeared likely in larger cities if the housewives continued in their determination to boycott meat until prices came down.

Meat dealers and their organizations in other cities asserted that a better answer to high meat prices was greater production and stated a consumer's boycott would not help anything.

Some authorities have predicted that if the buyer's strike gains support, it will be mostly in urban communities. Chicago, Cleveland, Columbus and Pittsburgh markets showed no significant reaction Wednesday and Chicago was reported active on hogs and steady on other livestock.

With A Buckeye In Congress

Revival of Federal Controls
Denied by Special Session

By CLARENCE J. BROWN

The special session of Congress, called by President Truman from the platform of the Democratic National Convention in Philadelphia, adjourned late Saturday night after two weeks of work. Only a portion of the legislative program requested by the president was enacted into law at the special session.

In passing an anti-inflation measure, Congress gave the Truman administration power to re-instate war-time consumer credit controls up to June 30, 1949, and to increase reserve balances to be maintained against deposits by all member banks of the Federal Reserve System. It is believed that under the consumer credit provisions of the law installment payments will be limited to 18 months on large purchases, and 12 to 15 months on smaller ones, with from 20 to 33 percent down payments required. The increase in bank reserves against deposits, as required under the new law, will also have the effect of making less money available for bank loans and credits.

In another bill making amendments to the Federal Housing Act some eight hundred millions of dollars will be available for government loans on low-price housing—both individual homes and multiple-unit apartment buildings—costing between $4500.00 and $6000.00 per family unit. One section of this new law will permit veterans to borrow as much as 95 percent of the total cost of a new low-price home. Loans for other low-price housing will also be easier to obtain on better terms, but the real problem, of course, will come in actually building a home at a low cost while paying present high prices for building material and labor.

In many sections of the country ordinary lumber is bringing $150 per thousand, while carpenters are receiving from two to three dollars and three masons and plasterers from three to three and one-half dollars, per hour, with time and a half for all over time or Saturday and Sunday work.

The third bill passed during the special session of Congress at the request of the president was a measure making available a sixty-five million dollar loan for the construction of a new United Nations home in New York City. This loan will run for 35 years, and will not bear interest.

The Congress refused to give the president authority to return America to the system of government controls, rationing and regimentation like that which pertained during the war time under OPA. It will be remembered it was this system which President Truman denounced as "police state methods" when he brought an end to OPA by executive order in late 1946. What the president was asking for, of course, was power and authority which would have given him greater control over the life of every individual in the United States than has ever been held or exercised by any president in time of peace. Had Congress agreed, Mr. Truman could have become a virtual dictator over the economic life of the nation.

Congress believes a return to rationing, regimentation and government control of the economic activities of the country is not the answer to the present high cost of living which so gravely concerns all of us. However, much can be done to hold down or reduce high prices through the proper exercise of credit controls by the government; through eliminating waste and extravagance in the operation of the government; by reducing exports of scarce commodities out of this country; by stopping unnecessary public building and construction; by placing a curb on government subsidies; and by encouraging greater production of goods now in short supply.

For a long time now the American people have been wondering about many of the New Deal actions which have been so favorable to Soviet Russia. They have been asking why Russia and her satellite nations have been receiving so many shipments of strategic materials and supplies from the United States while we were spending billions to stop the spread of Communism in Europe. The answer seems to have been given by a Senate committee which has had before it the young man in charge of granting government export licenses to Russia, who has admitted most of the accusations made against him by a former Russian agent. Yet

At ConferenceLarge Cities Given

Organization

City Manager Winston W. Hill returned Tuesday night from an all day session of the Association of Ohio Municipalities, held at the Hotel Mansfield-Leland in Mansfield Tuesday.

While attending the meeting he voiced his opposition to some of the plans incorporated in the constitution and by laws of the association.

Hill spoke in opposition to inclusion of rules which, he told the conference, gives to the larger cities full control of the association, by providing one delegate from each city, and an additional delegate for each 50,000 population in the cities.

The convention adopted the measure, however, to the general dissatisfaction of smaller city representatives.

the president of the United States refuses to permit the Senate committee to see the employment records of the loyalty file of this high placed official. Over on the House side of the capitol the American activities committee has been hearing testimony of several former Russian agents, or spies, naming a large number of past and present high officials of the Federal Government whom they say were either Communists or "fellow travelers" working in the interest of Russia, furnishing important information to the Soviet Government. Yet President Truman, instead of cooperating with Congress in an effort to uncover and bring to justice those who have betrayed the American people, joins with the Communists and Henry Wallace in denouncing the whole investigation as a "red herring" to smear liberals. The American people will have to judge for themselves as the evidence unfolds.

representatives, some of whom announced their intention of not attending further sessions of the association.

This control was pointed to in the meeting of all officers of the association from cities in northern Ohio.

Mayor Thomas Burke of Cleveland urged the association of Ohio municipalities to present city representatives problems directly to the political parties.

He urged the organization's first convention to appoint five members to appear before the platform committees at the Republican and Democratic state conventions next month.

The group elected Mayor Charles E. Slusser of Akron president. Mayor Patrick J. Flaherty of Lorain was named first vice president, Mayor Roy W. Vaughn of Mansfield second vice president, and Mayor Edgar L. Tucker of Norwalk third vice president.

First Honor Citizen Is David Whiteside

Fayette County's first "Golden Rule Honor Citizen" is shown in the above photograph surrounded by some of the boys and girls at the Children's Home where he is the superintendent. By his side is Mrs. Whiteside, his constant helper and matron of the home.

Jewel Pin Awarded

ning as the first "honor" citizen so chosen, when he was presented with a beautiful jeweled pin by City Manager Winston W. Hill, acting as master of ceremonies at the stage show "The Best Is Yet To Come," the first of the series which is sponsored by the Washington Park Association, which was organized through the Washington Rotary Club to make the park and a modern new swimming pool an attractive place for young people of the city and county. This is one of the moves conceived with the object of reducing juvenile delinquency in this locality and holding it to a minimum. It also is expected to provide a delightful recreational spot for families from all over the city and county.

Qualifications Considered

The committee in charge of the choice of a deserving citizen for this honor and special award agreed unanimously upon Whiteside. The committee was of one mind in their understanding that each one of the citizens, one to be chosen each month, must have special qualification, in good deeds performed unselfishly for community benefit, in the example of a life of integrity and charity toward others which can be regarded as an exemplary mode of living and a commendable pattern of life worthy of emulation, or a person who voluntarily and without compensation has performed good deeds for others, or for the community, without expectation of reward.

The selection of Whiteside was based largely upon his many activities far beyond the requirements of his position or the call of duty, to aid children who have become wards of the county.

With the aid of Mrs. Whiteside, who has become almost an ideal "mother" to many of these youngsters, this children's home has become something more than a mere county institution.

Children Treated As Family

Mr. and Mrs. Whiteside have taken almost as much interest in the young people left in their care as if they were their own children. They have been given every advantage possible, coming as near to living the normal life that a child should have as is possible under the circumstances. The children have the best of school advantages, being taken to the public schools at Bloomingburg each day; they are regular attendants in Sunday School and church at the McNair Memorial Church, some also attend Christian Endeavor meetings; they take part in sports, have definite duties assigned for work on the 215 acre county home farm, enjoy all manner of special amusements and other activities provided through cooperation of many people whom Whiteside has interested in helping the children. A boys' softball team, at the home won the championship of a church league here one year.

As a result of their farm activities young people from this home took 15 first premiums, five seconds and one third in exhibition of farm products and handicraft at the Fayette County Fair this year.

Under Whiteside's supervision a well planned recreational program is carried on, it being his idea that if children are "kept busy" they are more likely to be happy and avoid trouble.

Whiteside's Scout Award

A Boy Scout troop organized at the home long ago has been one of the outstanding organizations at the institution and according to Whiteside has been an excellent influence for the boys.

As a result of Whiteside's earnest help in Boy Scout work he was given the Silver Beaver Award, the first ever presented to any one in Fayette County. This was given to him at a special session of high officers of the state organization in Boy Scout work on March 19, 1943, for distinguished service of a voluntary nature to boyhood. This is one of the greatest honors which can be received by anyone in the nation and those who have had such an award are few. It is considered a top tribute for voluntary helpful service.

Some of "my boys" as Whiteside calls them, have made fine reputations after they left this county home and went into life work for themselves. A great majority becomes citizens that any one would be glad to know. Mr. and Mrs. Whiteside's regard for many of the youngsters who have lived at this home is attested by the scores of photographs of boys and girls in almost every room in the place. Dave never fails to ask visitors to see some of these photographs and to tell of the things that this and that boy or girl has accomplished.

David Whiteside became superintendent of the Fayette County Children's Home on April 16, 1930. He relates that Eugene Robinson, a boy who graduated this year from high school after spending all but the first four years of his past life at this home, was born the day Whiteside took over the institution.

Born in 1880 in the farm home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ezekiel Whiteside, Dave never actually graduated from high school. He received a good practical school education, however, and as he grew older he began teaching school. Between school terms and at other times, whenever possible, Dave attended Ohio Northern University. He spent a good part of 10 years in the teaching game at the Green school, north of Yatesville, the Klevor school at Yatesville, the Wissler school on the Danville Road, and the school at Cook's Station. After quitting teaching in 1910, he operated a general store at Yatesville for seven years during which time he was township clerk and aided in building the first centralized public school in this part of the state, at Yatesville.

A Former County Treasurer

His integrity, common sense and general record as a good citizen caused him to be nominated for county treasurer of Fayette County in 1919, an office which he held for two terms from 1919 to 1923.

He then took over and operated a shoe store at the corner of Court and North Streets for seven years. He was in the business when he was chosen superintendent of the children's home with Mrs. Whiteside as matron following the resignation of Thomas S. Pinkerton. Some years ago this title was changed by law and Whiteside now is known as executive secretary of the Child Welfare Board.

Whiteside's ambition during his entire tenure of office at the Fayette County Children's Home has been to inculcate in the minds of the young people under his control the idea of becoming good citizens. In his own homely philosophical manner he brings strongly to them the importance of the Golden Rule as a guiding principle of life. He has as much sympathy for the boys and girls under his care as a parent and is a firm believer that no child is as well off anywhere as in his or her own home if there is parental responsibility in that home.

Asked whether he had noticed any change in the attitude of children with whom he has been in almost constant contact during the past year he said that most of the boys and girls out there were normal in their reactions and like most children everywhere else in this nation most of them are "more demanding just like adults."

"Since nothing can take the place of a real home we do everything within our power to give them all the influences of a good home here," he said, "and in a great majority of the cases it has amply repaid us in the satisfaction obtained from seeing many of our boys and girls do as well as they do, when they leave. They come back to see us years afterward for short visits and often are married and bring their families."

There are now 48 young people in the county home out of an enrollment of 73, Whiteside said, the other 25 having been placed in good homes where they help with the work and enjoy all privileges of a family relationship.

Homes Sought for Many

Great care is taken, Whiteside stated, to see that children are not placed in homes merely to be used as help or where influences are bad.

The number of children attached to the county home is less than some years ago because, as Whiteside declares, increased enrollment comes with depression times.

A child may stay in this home until he or she is 21 years of age, it was pointed out, but Whiteside admitted with a grin that "some stayed a little longer". If one of the children there shows a real desire to go higher in education, after high school graduation, Mr. and Mrs. Whiteside make every effort to see that they get a college course, if they are willing to help themselves some.

"Home" Boys In War Service

In the last world war 30 boys who were in the home or had left it only in recent years, were in military service for their country. One William Runkle, stood high in the air service as a fighter pilot and was killed in battle over Guam. Sherman Bell, another youth gained a high rating in the navy in radio work and other duties.

"My life has become pretty well wrapped up in this place," Whiteside said in talking of the nearly a fifth of a century he has spent there. "There is something that makes you feel good inside when you think that extra efforts you are making with these young people, some of them as young as four and five years, seem to be bringing results. I can't help feeling that most of these youngsters haven't had a fair chance so far in life and we try here to give them just the little help and encouragement sometimes needed to make them see the future possibilities in living decent lives. We get a little discouraged in some cases now and then but we keep 'plugging' and the results are far more often good than unduly disappointing."

Dave Whiteside aided by his motherly wife are just the kind

The two-hour revue was studded with an assortment of acts by polished entertainers.

Headlining the program was the Coleman Quartette, of radio and Decca recording fame.

Two comedy acts, put on by Farmer Boy Jack Lee and Dick Burns, provided the lighter touch. Little Barbara Ann King, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn King of the Bloomingburg and New Holland Pike, not only provided the hometown atmosphere but also left the audience gasping over her acrobatic ballet performance.

Hometown Atmosphere

Barbara Ann, who started dancing only a year ago at the Barbara Allen School of Dancing here, is not old enough to give much thought to a career on the stage, her father said. "She just likes to do it," he said adding, "that's the trouble around home. When her mother calls her for something, she is just as likely as not to come doing cartwheels and handstands across the room."

Acrobatic dancing is "just natural" for her, said her father.

Comedy Relief

Just back from a six months Australian tour, Dick Burns, whose make-up resembled that of Harpo Marx of movie fame, amazed the crowds with his comedy xylophone numbers, novelties, tricks and pantomime.

No less a laugh-getter was Jack Lee, the imitable country-boy type comedian who appeared last night for the Washington C. H. opening of these productions, to the delight of all who saw him. His comedy violin playing and

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fisher and sons, and Bonnie Fisher spent Sunday in West Jefferson at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Fisher. Bonnie remained at home after spending the past week with her brother and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Henselman and Jack Brubaker of Bellefontaine and Mr. and Mrs. James Exline and son David of Springfield were the Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Exline and family.

muscle-controlled weaving had the audiences in stitches.

The Coleman Bros, colored quartet direct from the Mutual radio network's Circle Arrow shows, made a solid hit with the audience. These four talented colored young men sang a well-balanced program with something especially pleasing to all ages. Their numbers included their own special arrangement of "Where Shall We Dream Tonight," hit song introduced originally by Wilmington's Virginia Van der Voort in Hygienic's motion picture "Mom and Dad." Other numbers by the quartet were "Shadrack," "Danny Boy," "Manana," "The Gospel Train," "You May Run on for a Long Time" and "St. Louis Blues."

One of America's most talented colored musicians, Millard G. Thomas, played accompaniment for the quartet.

Several Other Acts

Other acts included Miss Doris Bay, contortionist and acrobatic dancer. Her performance, atop a neon-lighted pedestal on top of the big baby grand piano, was an exhibition of body-and-muscle control of amazing perfection.

Kurt Rollini, a talented rhythm performer on rolling balls, slides, teeterboards and stairways, provided many thrills in the seventh edition.

A unique act early in the show opened with a special piano number by the orchestra's pianist, Ernie Marioni, featured in a number titled "Sleepy Time Gal."

Eldon Humphreys, of the Clarksville area, was the third to play in the piano series.

New Name Band

Ray Robbins, youthful maestro out of Hollywood, Calif., and his talented music makers pleased local audiences with their fine variety of numbers. Robbins, billed as "the singing trumpet and song" man did impersonations of famous trumpet players Henry Busse and Clyde McCoy themes and the vocal on several numbers. Featured songstress with the orchestra was Miss Jackie Stevens, who sang, "Stormy Weather," and "Deed I Do."

Jimmy Green, comedy bass player of the Robbins aggregation was featured in the vocal of "My Own Grandpa," and he and Robbins made a hit with their duet, "Shut That Gate." Other band selections included "Charmaine," "Royal Garden Blues," "Along the Almo," "Sweet Sue," "Night and Day," "The Sugar Blues," "Hot Lips," "Whiffenpoof Song," "Dark Town Strutters Ball."

Brick and Tile Production In This County Recalled

Many years ago brick and tile making plants were numerous in Fayette County, and virtually all brick used in building the early business blocks and brick residences as well as other buildings, including the "little red school-houses," were produced by these plants.

Naturally the brick were made from native clay and processed in kilns where wood was the main fuel to "bake" the brick and tile. Not only were nearly all of the brick buildings in the city and county made of native clay, but tens of thousands of the red tile used in draining the swamp lands of the county, as well as the lands generally, were produced by plants located at various places in the county.

The last of these plants, located at Good Hope, was closed a number of years ago.

Now, with not a single tile or brick making plant in the county, and none in some of the surrounding counties, all of the brick and tile must be purchased elsewhere and brought in here by truck or railroad.

Now much of the building is done with vitrified brick, and practically all drainage in the city, or all connections with the sewer system, are made from vitrified pipe or tile.

Most of the vitrified pipe and brick come from eastern Ohio, centering around Uhrichsville and its twin city of Dennison.

Hard-fired clay withstands domestic and industrial sewage, even if it is acid or alkali. In the current building boom, the kilns of the Uhrichsville district smoke by day and flare by night as the plants work to keep up with the demand for sewer pipe.

Ohio produces more than one-third of the nation's sewer pipe, and the plants around Uhrichsville account for about three-fourths of Ohio's output.

Figures on Uhrichsville's leadership in sewer pipe production were given to the Ohio Development and Publicity Commission by Prof. J. O. Everhart of the Engineering Experiment Station, Ohio State University. The commission is making a study of recent industrial changes in Ohio at the request of Governor Thomas J. Herbert.

Tuscarawas County contains 13 of Ohio's 21 sewer pipe plants. Clay supplies and know-how in sewer pipe manufacture have concentrated the industry at Uhrichsville to a surprising degree.

Know-how is not enough to meet modern competition. Sewer pipe manufacture and performance are being improved by research. Professor Everhart is research director of the National Clay Pipe Research Corporation, representing 65 percent of the nation's sewer pipe manufacturing capacity and including four Canadian plants. The program of investigation was arranged by the Ohio State University Research Foundation.

Polish Youth Ready to Fight

New Organization To Support Russia

WARSAW, Aug. 12 — (AP) — Young Communists and Leftist Socialists have banded together all the big youth organizations in Poland into a single Polish youth association.

The new union, embracing more than 700,000 members, says it is ready to fight "against imperialism for a lasting peace and the free development of nations."

Poland's youth, too, say they'll stick close to Soviet Russia and develop fraternal relations with the Russians and the peoples of other eastern European democracies.

The ZWM—Communist fighting youth organization—long had agitated for the merger of all youth groups in Poland. With its close ally, the Leftist Socialist organization, they pushed the union through at a Congress recently in the lower Silesian city of Wroclaw (Breslaw).

Janusz Zarzycki, head of the supreme council of the fighting youth, was elected president of the fused organization. The vice-presidency went to Lucjan Motyka, who has headed the central committee of the Otmur, a Socialist organization of university students and workers.

The Communist fighting group had a membership of 330,000. The Socialist Otmur had 150,000. With these were blended 260,000 of "WICI"—the Peasants Youth Union—and 20,000 of the ZWD—an organization of democratic intellectuals.

A supreme council of 100 members was elected to run the Polish Youth Association.

Additionally, a presidium of 13 persons was chosen to administer various sections of the association.

Formation of the association is a forerunner of the fusion of the two biggest political parties—the Communist workers party, and the Leftist Socialists. That union already has been agreed upon and is expected to be announced in October. It will give the Communists a strong talking basis from the international standpoint. Membership of the merged parties will run around 2,000,000 persons.

Two Psychiatrists To Study Killer

MANSFIELD, Aug. 12 — (AP) — Dr. J. F. Bateman, superintendent of the Columbus State Hospital, was named today as the second of two psychiatrists who will determine the sanity of Robert M. Daniels, confessed slayer of three people.

Common Pleas Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch made the appointment. R. E. Bushong, superintendent of the Lima State Hospital was appointed previously for the examination.

Daniels has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity in the murders of John E. Niebel, Mansfield Reformatory Farm superintendent; Niebel's wife, Nola, and their 21-year-old daughter, Phyllis.

His trial has been set for Aug. 30.

26 Babies Born During July in Fayette County

Be Sure to Register Births with Health Department

Twenty six babies were born in Fayette County during July according to a report by Miss Lillie E. Henkle clerk of the county health department. Six of the children were born in Washington C. H.

An unusual request was received from Germany by the health department recently, Miss Henkle said, in which a H. E. Harley who lived in Bremen, Germany, asked for a copy of his birth certificate.

No record was found of Harley's birth there although in his letter he said that he had been born January 3, 1918, in Washington C. H. Harley had lost all of his identification papers and had to have the certificate to get a passport, he said.

"Although we have no record of the birth here," Mrs. Hinkle said, "one may be filed in the state bureau of vital statistics." "However," she added "this incident illustrates the importance of filing births with the board of health at the time they occur." Miss Henkle went on to encourage all residents to be sure that a certificate is filed when a child is born to them.

During July 18 deaths were recorded in the county, 13 of them

In this scene from "Deep Waters," coming to the Fayette Theatre Sunday, Cesar Romero reveals to Dana Andrews his plans to quit the sea-going life and buy a farm. The picture is a filmization of Ruth Moore's novel, "Spoonhandle." It was filmed on the fishing island of Vinalhaven, 10 miles off the coast of Maine. Other leading roles are taken by Jean Peters, Dean Stockwell and Ann Rvere. It is a Twentieth Century-Fox production.

Politics Charged Behind Spy Hunt

BY JACK BELL

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—(AP)—Republicans laid plans today to keep their investigation of Communists in government going through September and Senator Pepper (D-Fla.) charged it is all part of a "smear campaign." Senator McClellan (D-Ark.) told

Mrs. Lonnie F. Penwell of RFD 5 Washington C. H.

Linda June to Mr. and Mrs. Russell Patterson of New Holland, Carolyn Sue to Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Mitchell of RFD 1 South Solon, Alice Fae to Mr. and Mrs. Harlen McKinley Saxon of RFD 1 Jeffersonville, Polly Ann to Mr. and Mrs. DeForest Mastin of RFD 1 Washington C. H., and Linda Lou to Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Barr of Good Hope.

a reporter he has been notified to return to Washington September 13 for resumed hearings by a committee headed by Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.).

Told of this, Pepper said the timing smacks of politics—a conclusion with which McClellan didn't agree.

"This makes it obvious that the Republican pattern is to make this a smear campaign," Pepper declared. "The whole design is to discredit the late President Roosevelt, the Democratic party and President Truman."

The Ferguson committee quit last week when it found itself stymied in efforts to obtain the complete employment records of William W. Remington, a suspended commerce department official named by Miss Elizabeth Bentley, the confessed spy queen, as one of those who gave her information.

50 More Observers On Job in Holy Land

JERUSALEM, Aug. 12—(AP)—Count Folke Bernadotte put 50 more French and American observers on the job today in an effort to stop truce violations in Jerusalem.

"I want this shooting stopped," he told a news conference yesterday. "My position is going to be tougher and tougher x x x. I want to show both parties that I can be serious."

(In Alexandria, a source close to the Arab league said a Jewish invitation to start Palestine peace talks has been rejected. The informant said the league, responding to an invitation made by Israeli foreign Minister Moshe Shertok through Bernadotte, declared the Arabs do not recognize "any such gang as the pseudo-government of Israel.")

Bernadotte is the United Nations mediator for Palestine.

Building Dark Room Is Fun Camera Club Members Declare

Recent hobby-polls conducted by the Record-Herald show photography has come into its own as one of the major pastimes in Washington C. H.

In order to aid the growing number of shutterbugs here, two top officials of the Camera Club collaborated to describe the fun and ease in building a home darkroom. They both agree the elaborateness will necessarily be governed by the pocketbook, but they enthusiastically contend the hobby will provide many dividends on the initial investment.

The minimum requirements are a space 6 feet by 8 feet, electric outlets and a sink or tub with hot and cold water.

A corner of the cellar is by far the most popular choice since only two added partitions will complete the darkroom. But a word of caution from the men of experience: guard against a damp cellar and provide good ventilation to prevent mildew, deterioration of films, papers and chemicals and just plain suffocation in the summertime.

Concerning partitions, the Camera Club members advise them to be light-tight in these days of panchromatic films. They can be built of wall board, composition board or a linoleum surface attached to uprights. The darkroom entrance is a problem since you don't want the family barging in while films are being loaded.

Consequently, they continued, that rules out the doorway with a dark curtain drape (that was a great dust gatherer anyway). A door with a catch on it is preferable. Make sure the hinges are set so the door opens out of (they emphasized the "out of") not into, the darkroom. But if you have a little extra space, the open maze entrance is best. Not only can you get in or out with your hands loaded, but it gives the best answer to the ventilation problem.

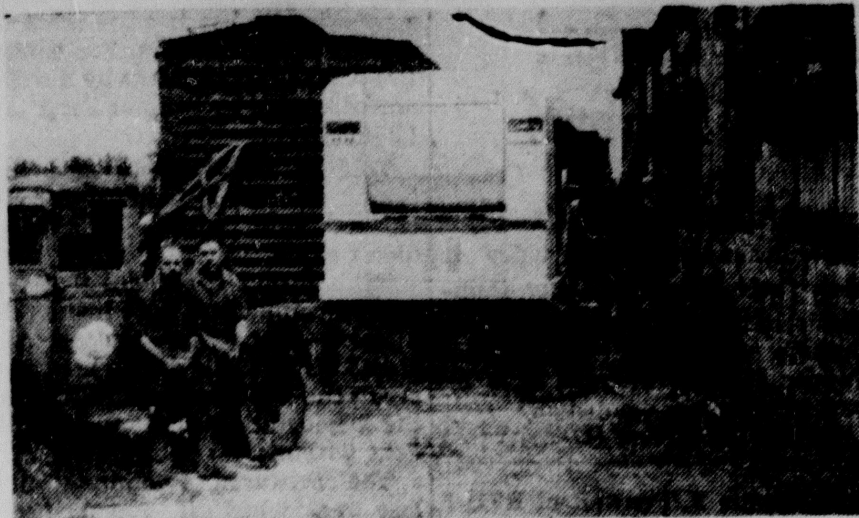

The heart of the darkroom is the work bench, about 34 inches high, 26 inches wide. Its minimum space should accommodate an enlarger, paper container, contact printer and three trays that lead to the sink. Any extra area would be fine.

Seventh Polio Death Of Year in Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Aug. 12.—(P)—Greater Cleveland's seventh polio death of 1948 occurred at City Hospital when Alfred Ogilvy, 30, of suburban Lyndhurst, died. Total infantile paralysis cases for the season are 62, compared with 16 patients and no death in a like period of last year.

AMERICA'S typical woman, says a Cincinnati dress house survey, has a smaller bosom, thicker waist, heavier hips than the "Miss America" candidate you've been hearing about. Here she is: Diane Young of Brooklyn, N. Y., "Miss Average," with 34 bust, 26 waist, 35½ hips. (International)

Pictured here is the dough mixer in which Freddie Hunt met his death at the Pennington Bros. Bakery early Saturday morning, when he was drawn into the agitator blades.

The mixer was photographed after it had been removed from the plant. It was immediately replaced by a new mixer from Cincinnati, which was installed without delay. The mixer pictured here was discarded.

Athletics Close In On Leading Indians

By RALPH RODEN
(By the Associated Press)
Pennant fever is mounting in Philadelphia today. Connie Mack's Athletics once again are only a hair's breadth out of first place in the American League's tugging pennant battle.

The A's, who on a number of occasions have been down and ready to be counted out of the struggle, moved to within .0001 of a percentage point of the front-running Cleveland Indians last night with a thrilling victory over Washington while the Indians divided a twilight-night doubleheader with St. Louis.

Connie Mack's hustling club has won 65 games and lost 43 while the Indians have topped 62 victories and suffered 41 defeats. Since the A's have played more games, they are a half game ahead of the Tribe, but Cleveland has the better won-loss percentage, .6019 to the A's .6018.

Philadelphia came from behind and beat the Senators, 8-3, while the Indians, after downing the Browns, 7-5, were crushed, 12-4, in

Dodger School Open to Boys of Community

Young men in this community are going to get a chance to display their baseball talents to a big league scout at Middletown next week.

Richard Cameron, was in Washington C. H. Tuesday spreading the word around that the Brooklyn Dodgers are going to hold a baseball school at Armco Field in Middletown, Sept. 17 to 20.

Cameron, one of the Dodger scouts, contacted Bob Bailey, secretary of the SCO League, and was looking for Fred Pierson, the city recreation director, to give them the details.

The school is open to young baseballers between the ages of 17 and 24 years. They bring their own gloves and uniforms (if they have them) and pay their own room and board while attending the school. Cameron said they would be reimbursed for their expense if they are signed up. He did not say, however, how many he expected to line up during the school.

With Cameron, the staff of instructors—who also appraise the boys—are to be Phil Weinert, a former Philadelphia pitcher; Cliff Alexander, coach at Cincinnati's Woodward High School and Ron Burkhardt, coach at St. Lawrence University in New York state.

Bailey said he thought "four or five" of the Eagle team would be interested in the school. Several of them, he added, already are under the watchful eyes of big league scouts.

Yanks Pile Up Olympic Honors

Power Is Surprise In 'European Sports'

By TED SMITS
LONDON, Aug. 12—(AP)—Surprising American power in sports which Europeans regard as their own promised today to make the Olympic games now coming to a close one of the U. S. A.'s brightest.

A sparkling team victory in weight-lifting and a possible one in yachting, an individual championship in canoeing and good showings in sabre and equestrian events are now piled on top of sweeps in men's track and swimming and bright records in crew and women's swimming.

The games of the fourteenth Olympiad close Saturday. In basketball, however, the Americans have been surprised, and they like it. They came over here bent on being salesmen of the sport, playing under wraps, but the competition is tougher and rougher than anyone expected.

"The central and south Americans are 100 percent better than at Berlin in 1936," enthusiastically declared Lou Wilkie of Denver, Olympic basketball committee chairman. "They really play basketball."

Last night the U. S. basketball team reached the Friday finals by beating Mexico, 71 to 40, but at the start it was a good ball game until the superior height and strength of the American reserves told. France is the other finalist.

The Mexican team started off with plenty of fire but gradually cooled off. It had height, with six-foot, four-inch Jose Santos de Leon as a leader, and it handled the ball aggressively and well.

As usual, America's seven-foot Bob Kurland drew boos, although there are few kinder basketball players. British crowds seem to resent his size. In the end he was bounced out of the game for what the officials, M. V. Ugolini of Italy and M. A. A. Ashri of Egypt, thought was unsportsmanlike conduct.

In some fast action under the Mexican basket Kurland collided with George Gudino Goya, who had to be helped to his feet. Ashri said Kurland threw his hip at Goya. Kurland declared it was all an accident.

Leesburg Citizen Wins County Title

The Leesburg Citizen's team today held the softball championship of Highland County.

Mack Sauer's boys beat the Hillsboro Merchants, 7 to 3, in Tuesday night's finals of the Highland County tournament.

The tournament, which was started last week, was played in Hillsboro.

Circleville Team Is Coming Friday

With Thursday morning's bright sunshine, everything looked rosy for a resumption of Recreation League softball at Wilson Field in the evening.

Wednesday night's games were rescheduled to give everyone a chance to take in the first episode of "The Best Is Yet To Come" at the high school auditorium.

Another doubleheader was on tap for Thursday night. Pennington's Bakers and Armbrusts were booked for the first game and New Holland's Drakes and the Lawson Legionnaires for the second.

Friday night's twin bill is to be featured by another of the customary games with an out-of-town team—the Richard Implement Co. outfit from Circleville.

The Universals are to take on the Pickaway County invaders this time. In a game earlier this season, the DP&L boys nosed out the Circlevilleans, 1-0.

Friday night's opener will be between the Hughey Legionnaires and the Mortons.

Football Razzle-Dazzle Likely In High School All-Star Game

CANTON, Aug. 12—(AP)—North and south squads tapered off with short signal drills today in preparation for the third annual Ohio all-star scholastic football game tomorrow night.

Coach Chuck Mather of the south squad was a picture of gloom as he predicted "the only way we can win the game is through the air." The northern squad will outweigh the southern by approximately 20 pounds.

Coach Harry Strobel of the south team wouldn't venture any prediction, saying only "I'm looking for most anything to happen."

The south squad has concentrated this week on forward passing, which the north has drilled extensively on defense.

Both coaches said they planned to use every player on their rosters. More than 300 high school and college coaches attending the week long Ohio high school football coaching school will be guests of honor here tonight at a civic appreciation banquet.

The school, which concludes Saturday, features a lecture today by Bobby Dodd, head coach of Georgia Tech's Orange Bowl champions. Dodd speaks on "pass defense and highlights of kicking."

Herman Hickman, head coach at Yale and 1947 Army line coach, will speak tomorrow on "offensive and defensive line play."

Paul Brown, coach of the Cleveland Browns, champions of the all America conference, concludes the school Saturday with a lecture on "pass offense."

Amateur Dominates 1948 Hambletonian

By JOHN CHANDLER
GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 12—(AP)—A check which almost wasn't sent proved a happy, profitable investment today to Harrison Hoyt. The owner of the 1948 Hambletonian winner, Demon Hanover, took a $200 gamble and cleaned up $32,500.15.

The Demon, who proved to be just that yesterday as he zipped to straight-heat victories in the 23rd Hambletonian at Good Time track, almost wasn't nominated to America's premier trotting derby.

Demon Hanover captured the first heat before a record 20,000 crowd, then returned an hour later to repeat the process, even more

BOWLING GREEN, Aug. 12—(AP)—Weldon Humble, former Rice all-America guard and member of the Cleveland Browns pro football team, had two reasons for celebrating today.

He received two notices yesterday, one from head coach Paul Brown of the all-America conference champs that he had been named to a No. 1 guard position, and the other from Texas that he had become the father of a bouncing baby boy.

Radical Changes In Production in Some New Cars

GM and Chrysler Lines Not Expected Before Next Year

By DAVID J. WILKIE
DETROIT, Aug. 12.—(AP)—The car industry will do well if it equals this year the total output of 4,800,000 vehicles attained in 1947.

Right now production is about 10 days ahead of the volume recorded at this time last year but there is no certainty the industry can hold this margin. Besides continuing materials shortages the facilities have a lot of new model work to cut into assemblies.

It has been reported in some industry quarters that several companies will try to get new models in production without halting assembly lines. This might be done where unused assembly lines are available; two substantially different types of cars cannot be built on the same conveyors.

Most of the 1949 models to be put into production during the remainder of this year will differ materially from those now being shipped. Cadillac, the Oldsmobile "Futuramic," Packard and Hudson may not be changed much in appearance, but GM's Buick Chevrolet and Pontiac reportedly are reading drastic alterations as are the several Chrysler divisions.

Nash, planning a "completely new car" already is closed down for its switch-over. New model programs always are subject to last minute changes but it appears likely now that October will see the new Nash cars and Cadillac's 1949 types.

Buick may show its re-designed models in November and the new Chevrolet and Pontiac models, going into production in December probably will be shown in January.

Chrysler has given not even a hint regarding its new model planning, but sources usually well informed believe the 1949 Plymouths, Dodges, DeSotos and Chryslers will be introduced next February.

General Motors' Oldsmobile division, of course, is expected to restyle its "dynamic" models, known as the "60" and "70" series cars. A V-8 higher compression engine of increased horsepower probably will be installed in the "futuramic" series.

Rumor has it the new Buick will be a completely redesigned car. Although there has been no specific announcement to that effect, the torque converter transmission probably will be offered as optional equipment on the "50" or super model series.

Chevrolet's planning is arousing considerable speculation in trade quarters. So far this year the biggest of the GM division has produced about 470,000 passenger cars and 240,800 trucks. This compares with 425,000 cars and about 180,000 trucks built during the same period last year.

Actually neither Chevrolet nor any other car builder needs new models at this time to stimulate interest. But many months of planning are needed to get a new model from the drafting board to the assembly lines. The new 1949 models were started on the sketching boards long before anybody in the industry actually knew how long the unfilled order blank would hold up.

Trade quarter gossip has it the new Chevrolet also will be new from the road up, with wider and longer body, entirely new front end treatment and roomier interior.

Current indications are it will be

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

"ROWLEY, can you let me have five hundred pounds?"
Rowley stared at Lynn. She stood there, out of breath from running, her face pale, her mouth set.

He said soothingly and rather as he would speak to a horse: "There, there, ease up, old girl. What's all this about?"

"I want five hundred pounds." "I could do with it myself, for that matter."

"But, Rowley, this is serious. Can't you lend me five hundred pounds?"

"I'm overdrawn as it is. That new tractor—"

"Yes, yes—" she pushed aside the farming details. "But you could raise money somehow—if you had to, couldn't you?"

"What do you want it for, Lynn? Are you in some kind of a hole?"

"I want it for him—" she jerked her head backwards towards the big square house on the hill.

"Hunter? Why on earth—"

"It's Mums. She's been borrowing from him. She's—she's in a bit of a jam about money."

"Yes, I expect she is," Rowley sounded sympathetic. "I'd a mended hard lines on her. I wish I could help a bit—but I can't."

"I can't stand her borrowing money from David!"

"Hold hard, old girl. It's Rosaleen who actually has to fork out the cash. And after all, why not?"

"Why not? You say 'Why not, Rowley?'"

"I don't see why Rosaleen shouldn't come to the rescue once in a while. Old Gordon put us all in a spot by pegging out without a will. If the position is put clearly to Rosaleen she must see herself that a spot of help all around is indicated."

"You haven't borrowed from her?"

"No—well—that's different. I can't very well go and ask a woman for money. Sort of thing you don't like doing."

"Can't you see that I don't like being—being beholden to David Hunter?"

"But, you're not. It isn't his money."

"That's just what it is, actually. Rosaleen's completely under his thumb."

"Oh I daresay. But it isn't his legally."

"And you won't, you can't—lend me some money?"

"Now look here, Lynn—if you were in some real jam—blackmail or debts—I might be able to sell land or stock—but it would be a pretty desperate proceeding. I'm only just keeping my head above water as it is. And what with not knowing what this Government is going to do next—hampered at every turn—snowed under with forms up to midnight trying to fill them in sometimes—it's too much for one man."

Lynn said bitterly: "Oh I know! If only Johnnie hadn't been killed—"

He shouted out: "Leave Johnnie out of it. Don't talk about that!"

She stared at him, astonished. His face was red and congested. He seemed beside himself with rage.

Lynn turned away and went slowly back to the White House.

"Can't you give it back, Mums?" "Really, Lynn darling! I went straight to the Bank with it. And then paid Arthur and Bodgham and Knebworth. Knebworth was getting quite abusive. Oh my dear, the relief! I haven't been able to sleep for nights and nights. Really, Rosaleen was most understanding and nice about it."

Lynn said bitterly: "And I suppose you'll go to her again and again now."

"I hope it won't be necessary, dear. I shall try to be very economical, you know that. But of course everything is so expensive nowadays. And it gets worse and worse."

"Yes, and we shall get worse and worse. Going on cadding."

Adela flushed. "I don't think that's a nice way of putting it, Lynn. As I explained to Rosaleen, we had always depended on Gordon—"

"We shouldn't have. That's what's wrong, we shouldn't have."

Lynn added, "He's right to despise us."

"Who despises us?"

"That odious David Hunter."

"Really," said Mrs. Marchmont with dignity, "I don't see that it can matter in the least what David Hunter thinks. Fortunately he wasn't at Furrowbank this morning—otherwise I daresay he would have influenced that girl. She's completely under his thumb, of course."

Lynn shifted from one foot to the other.

"What did you mean, Mums, when you said—that first morning I was home—if he is her brother?"

"Oh that," Mrs. Marchmont looked slightly embarrassed. "Well, there's been a certain amount of gossip, you know."

Lynn merely waited inquiringly. Mrs. Marchmont coughed.

"That type of young woman—the adventuress type (of course poor Gordon was completely taken in) they've usually got a—well, a young man of their own in the background. Suppose she says to Gordon she's got a brother—wires to him in Canada or wherever he is. This man turns up. How is Gordon to know whether he's her brother or not? Poor Gordon, absolutely infatuated no doubt, and believing everything she said. And so her 'brother' comes with them to England—poor Gordon quite unsuspecting."

Lynn said fiercely: "I don't believe it. I don't believe it!"

Mrs. Marchmont raised her eyebrows. "Oh I know! If only Johnnie hadn't been killed—"

"He's not like that. And she—she isn't either. She's a fool perhaps, but she's sweet—yes, she's really sweet. It's just people's foul minds. I don't believe it, I tell you."

Mrs. Marchmont said with dignity: "There's really no need to shout."

It was a week later that the 5:20 train drew into Warmsley Heath Station and a tall bronzed man with a knapsack got out.

On the opposite platform a cluster of golfers were waiting for the up train. The tall bearded man with the knapsack gave up his ticket and passed out of the station. He stood uncertainly for a minute or two—then he saw the signpost: Footpath to Warmsley Vale—and directed his steps that way with brisk determination.

At Long Willows Rowley Cloade had just finished making himself a cup of tea when a shadow falling across the kitchen table made him look up.

If just for a moment he thought the girl standing just inside the door was Lynn, his disappointment turned to surprise when he saw it was Rosaleen Cloade.

She was wearing a frock of some peasant material in bright broad stripes of orange and green—the artificial simplicity of which had run into more money than Rowley could ever have imagined possible.

Up to now he had always seen her dressed in expensive and somewhat dowdy clothes which she wore with an artificial air—much, he had thought, as a mannequin might display dresses that did not belong to her but to the firm who employed her.

This afternoon in the broad peasant stripes of gay color, he seemed to see a new Rosaleen Cloade. Her Irish origin was more noticeable, the dark curling hair and the lovely blue eyes put in with the smutty finger. Her voice, too, had a softer Irish sound instead of the careful rather mincing tones in which she usually spoke.

"It's such a lovely afternoon," she said. "So I came for a walk."

She added: "David's gone to London."

She said it almost guiltily, then flushed and took a cigarette case out of her bag. She offered one to Rowley who shook his head, then looked round for a match to light Rosaleen's cigarette. But she was flicking unsuccessfully at an expensive-looking small gold lighter. Rowley took it from her and with one sharp movement it lit.

As she bent her head towards him to light her cigarette he noticed how long and dark the lashes were that lay on her cheek and he thought to himself:

"Old Gordon knew what he was doing..."

Rosaleen stepped back a pace and said admiringly: "That's a lovely little heifer you've got in the top field."

Shanghai Population Now Over 6,000,000

SHANGHAI, Aug. 12.—(AP)—The population of Shanghai today was placed above the 6,000,000 mark by the police census bureau.

War refugees from the north have swelled the total which was 4,274,000 in 1940.

The new figure puts the Chinese city in the first four of the world, topped by New York, London and Paris.

School Board Discusses Crowded Rooms

Three New Teachers Appointed to City Schools Announced

Crowded conditions at the East-side and Sunnyside school buildings were the subject of concern at the last meeting of the school board.

A building committee composed of William C. Allen, Ray Brandenburg and Thomas Christopher was appointed by President Robert A. Craig to investigate the conditions and report their findings and recommendations at a special meeting August 24.

Superintendent A. B. Murray announced that he would meet during August with the principals of the elementary schools to develop a plan for the elimination of divided grades, and overcrowded rooms which have been a city school problem for some years. Action on the findings of this group will be ready before school starts September 7, Murray said.

Three new teachers were announced for 1948-1949.

Ronald A. Guinn of Oxford, Ohio, will take the place of Joseph Waddle in charge of junior high school football and assistant in basketball. Waddle has been appointed principal of the Central School (elementary) and sixth grade teacher and has been relieved of his coaching duties.

In addition to his coaching duties Guinn will teach health, physical education and some other subjects. He is a graduate of Miami University and attended Culver-Stout College at Canton, Missouri.

Mrs. Helen Starbuck Osborn of Washington C. H. has been placed as fifth grade teacher in the Rose Avenue School. She has been a substitute teacher for several years in the city schools. She attended Wilmington College and taught at Trenton, Ohio.

Miss Jahala A. McCorkle, a graduate of Marshall College in Huntington, West Virginia will teach high-school vocal music. She will replace Mrs. Lorraine Hopkins who has resigned.

An athletic committee appointed by President Craig was composed of Leonard Korn, Principal Stephen Brown, Superintendent Murray, and coaches Fred Pierson, Stephen Lewis, and Guinn, and was charged with the duties of formulating the athletic policies.

City Solicitor Winston W. Hill who is also attorney for the board of education attended the regular meeting Tuesday and advised them during their discussions.

Telegraph Service May Be Cut Here

The Western Union Telegraph Company is giving serious consideration to eliminating the Sunday and night service of its office on South Main Street here.

A. J. Davies, Columbus, the company's district manager for the western half of the state, discussed the matter frankly with the Chamber of Commerce and a number of business people in the city while here Thursday.

He stated that the Sunday morning and night service of the office here was operated at a loss to the company and that unless there was evidence that the service for these periods would show a substantial increase in use and revenue very soon the company would make application to the Federal Communications Commission to end it. The Sunday morning service of the office here has been from 8:15 to 10:15 and the night service from 6:15 to 7:15.

It is the company's intention to continue the service of its office at other hours, 7:45 to 5:30 P. M. as in the past. Calls for telegraph service when the regular office is

The action is based on a promissory note and mortgage executed August 6, 1947, the note being for $3800 and also a note for $329.65 with interest, executed Feb. 7, 1948.

Clearance Increased On Traffic Lights

Work began Thursday on raising the city's traffic lights above the clearance of high trucks.

The decision to begin the project resulted from the fact that drive-aways and other high trucks often damaged and were damaged by the traffic lights.

Four-foot steel sections are adding to the height of the poles that hold the supporting wires on each light. After the job has been completed the lights will be nearly three feet higher than they were.

Charles West of the West Welding Shop is welding the new sections to the poles.

First traffic lights to be completed was the one at the North and Court streets intersection and the one at Fayette and Court street intersection.

Two more, at Main and Court and at Hinde and Court, were expected to be finished Thursday afternoon.

The work is being done from a special scaffolding erected on the body of a large truck.

closed can be made to the B. & O. R. R. office here as has been done heretofore.

Davies reported that the same condition was true in a number of other cities in Ohio in which discontinuance of part of the service is being planned in a similar way.

Oldest and Largest Elm Tree in City Is Cut Down

There were some tense minutes Wednesday afternoon around 2 o'clock, when workmen were cutting a huge American or white elm tree which stood on the lawn at the home of Mrs. Mary Sauer, corner of East Temple and Delaware Streets, and the little crowd which had assembled to watch the work, breathed a sign of relief when the tree fell northward just as it had been planned for it to do by H. H. Hoop, and his workmen.

The big tree, which measured five feet three inches across some three feet above the ground, had died almost over night, apparently as result of the Dutch Elm blight which is taking heavy toll among American elm trees in this part of the nation.

Plans had been made for the tree to fall across the north portion of the lawn, with its top in Temple Street, and a heavy rope with tackle attached, had been fastened to the tree 50 feet above the ground and attached to a sizeable maple tree on the north side of Temple Street.

As the time for the big tree to topple approached, a strong breeze was blowing, and fears were expressed that the tree might fall to the east across the Sauer home, a two story brick structure, or possibly in some other direction.

However, the workmen had the sawing so carefully planned, and the wedges applied just right, so that the tree fell exactly as

Wert Briggs Rites Held At Residence

Largely attended funeral services for Wert C. Briggs, were held at his late home on Temple Street, Wednesday afternoon, and were conducted by Rev. George B. Parkin of Wilmington, former pastor of Grace Methodist Church here.

Three hymns, "Crossing The Bar," "Jesus, Savior, Pilot Me" and "Nearer My God To Thee."

Many beautiful floral tributes adorned the house. They were in charge of Miss Gretchen Darlington, Mrs. George W. Darlington, been left because of its symmetrical shape and beauty.

Loss of the tree is keenly felt, not only by the owner, but by persons throughout the immediate neighborhood.

The streets had been blocked off while the work of cutting the tree was in progress, and soon after it fell, workmen were busy removing the top from Temple Street.

Meanwhile the H. H. Hoop Tree Expert Co. employees are engaged in reducing the trunk to proper lengths for moving it to the sawmill to be cut into lumber.

Mrs. Donald Rife and Mrs. Kenneth Campbell.

Burial was in the family lot in the Washington Cemetery. Pallbearers were Leslie B., Leslie G., and Luren Briggs from Granville, Ohio and Forest, John and Stanley Briggs of Zanesville.

In addition to those mentioned the following people from out-of-town attended the funeral: Mrs. A. K. Briggs of Newark, Mrs. Leslie Briggs of Zanesville and Mrs. John Brounson of Newark.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jones of Columbus, Mrs. Lee Putnam, Mrs. Paul Orr, Mrs. James Burton and Mr. Ira Metzger, all of Frankfort, Mrs. Everett Landman and children, Mrs. Harry S. Briggs, Mrs. Floyd James, Miss Lillie M. Briggs and Miss Betsy Briggs, all of New Holland.
